Pesticide Application Tips

- Use pesticides only when other control methods fail. Extensive use of pesticides can kill beneficial organisms that help keep pest populations under control.
- Read the label carefully – it tells how, when, and where to use the product.
- Apply the amount specified on the label and apply only to the plants and areas listed. Over-application is a waste of money and an environmental hazard.
- Wear protective clothing as directed on the label. Do not wash clothing contaminated with pesticides with other clothing.
- Make sure the pesticide is designated for use on the pest you want to control. Do not mix different pesticides unless instructed by the product directions.
- Keep pesticides in their original containers, so you know what they are and how to use them. (It's also the law.)
- Do not apply pesticides if rain is forecast (unless specified on the label). Some pesticides do need to be watered-in after application, but rain or watering can wash others off plants, decreasing effectiveness, and possibly contaminating lakes and streams. (Read the label!)
- Never spray pesticides on breezy days. The spray drifting in the wind poses a serious danger to non-target plants and animals – including those in the neighbors' yards.

Eau Claire County - Master Gardener Volunteer Program

The purpose of the University of Wisconsin-Extension Master Gardener Volunteer Program is to train volunteers to provide research based information on horticulture topics to the general public in their communities.

This program provides horticultural training to adults who, in turn, volunteer for Eau Claire County UW-Extension. The goal is to connect people with resources and research-based information to help people better understand horticulture and their environment.

Acceptance into the program includes passing a background check, approval of application, and signing a volunteer agreement.

Course topics include:

- pest management of mammals, insects, and diseases
- lawn care, fruits, vegetable, and tree care
- general gardening practices

To learn more about the Eau Claire County Master Gardener Volunteer Program contact Erin LaFaive, (715) 839-4712 or visit
